Domestic abuse and protective orders.

What is domestic abuse?

Domestic abuse is an incident or pattern of incidents of controlling, coercive or threatening behaviour, violence or abuse between those aged 16 years or over who are, or have been, intimate partners or family members. The definition applies irrespective of gender, sexuality, or ethnicity.

This can include the following types of abuse: –

- psychological
- physical
- sexual
- financial
- emotional

How can Myerson help?

At Myerson we are alert to the protection that you may need. If you have been harmed or at risk of harm, we can act quickly and advise you in respect of legal options and practical measures you can take to protect yourself.

If you are suffering from any form of abuse, you may be able to apply to the Family Court for a protective order.

What types of orders are available?

There are two types of protective orders available, namely, non-molestation orders and occupation orders.

Non-molestation orders

A non-molestation order prohibits a person associated with the applicant from molesting them or a relevant child. Non-molestation orders are used to protect a party from violence, harassment and threats.

Occupation orders

An occupation order grants the applicant the right to occupy a dwelling house. The Court can decide who should or should not reside in all or part of the home and occupation orders can also exclude the other person from an area around the home.

The order can deal with practical matters of occupation including who is responsible for paying the rent or mortgage.

Who can apply?

To apply for a non-molestation order, you must be an associated person. A person is associated if they fall under one of the following categories:

- You are, were or intend to be married to each other.
- You are, were or intend to be civil partners to each other.
- You are or were cohabitants.
- You live or have lived in the same household in a familial relationship.
- You are relatives.
- You have or have had an intimate personal relationship of significant duration with each other; or
- You are a parent of a child or have or have had parental responsibility for a child.

How do I apply for a non-molestation order or occupation order?

The application is made using Form FL401 and a witness statement must be prepared setting out, in detail, what has happened.

How does the Court decide whether to make an order?

When deciding whether to make a non-molestation order, the Court will consider the health (mental and physical), safety and wellbeing of the applicant or any relevant child.

The Court must be satisfied that there is evidence of molestation, and that the applicant needs protection.

When deciding whether to make an occupation order, the Court applies different tests depending on the relationship status of the people involved.

For certain categories of applicant, the Court will apply a 'balance of harm' test. The Court will balance the harm that would be caused to the applicant, the respondent and any relevant children, if the occupation order were or was not made.

How much does it cost to apply for an order?

There is no court fee to apply for a non-molestation order or occupation order.

Legal aid is available for if you need to protect yourself from abuse or harassment, if you have been the victim of domestic abuse.

Most legal aid cases are means tested so you will have to show that you cannot afford to pay legal costs.

We do not have a legal aid contract, but you can search for a legal adviser or family mediator with a legal aid contract in England and Wales here - Find a legal aid adviser or family mediator \(justice.gov.uk\)

To find out more about our charges, we will need to know more about the circumstances of your case. For a free, no obligation initial telephone conversation, please contact a member of our family team.
