This Myerson questionnaire and checklist is designed to highlight the range of issues which should be considered when operating a business through a limited company where there is more than one shareholder. In order to regulate the arrangements between the shareholders, it is highly recommended that you put in place a shareholders' agreement and complementary articles of association.

This questionnaire and checklist also details what can be covered in a shareholders' agreement, a company's articles of association and directors' service agreements.

By completing this document you will assist us in providing the necessary information we need to produce a suite of documents for you and your company.

Once you have completed the questionnaire and checklist, or if you would like to discuss any points with a specialist Solicitor, please contact our Corporate team who will be happy to assist you.

B. DIRECTORS

1. Should each Shareholder be entitled to appoint and remove one Director to represent him on the Board? Yes No

2. Should a majority of Shareholders be able to remove a Shareholder Director as a director:

(a) in all circumstances Yes No

(b) in limited circumstances (i.e. gross misconduct or material breach of the Shareholders' Agreement) Yes No

Please specify limited circumstances:

3. Should each Director's responsibilities be set out in a service agreement/agreement for service? Yes No

A service agreement or agreement for services is recommended in order to regulate the relationship between the Company and each Director.

Please refer to the Director's Service Contract Section at the end of this Questionnaire and Checklist to provide contract details.

4. Should any of the Director/Shareholders have protected employment provisions applicable to them, whereby they cannot be removed as Directors/employees of the Company unless holders of a majority of the shares remove them:
- (a) in all circumstances Yes No
- (b) in limited circumstances (i.e. gross misconduct or material breach of the Shareholders' Agreement) Yes No

Please specify limited circumstances:

.....

5. Should there be a Chairperson of the Board of Directors? Yes No
- If so, should he/she have a casting vote? Yes No

If there is an even number of directors, or there are two Director Shareholders (with one being a majority and the other a minority Shareholder), having a Chairperson with a casting vote will either remove a deadlock at board level, or enable the majority Shareholder to have influence over the decision.

Remember: the Shareholders' Agreement will contain a list of decisions which require the consent of the Shareholders (or a percentage of them), so the Director's powers will be limited by the extra layer of protection that the Shareholders' Agreement provides (see section G below).

6. What will be the minimum number of directors required in order for a directors meeting (and an adjourned directors meeting) to take place and validly transact business?

If there are only 2 directors, it is likely to be 2. If you have "Founding Shareholders" (for example these may be majority Shareholders) you may wish to stipulate that the "Founders" or a certain number of them must be present. This allows some control over meetings. You may also provide that if, at the first meeting a quorum is not present, then the adjourned meeting may require a lesser number of Shareholders so that meetings are not frustrated.

How often should directors' meetings take place? At least every 3 months?

C. ANNUAL BUDGET & BUSINESS PLAN

Will the Shareholders procure the preparation of a draft budget and business plan each year, for approval by the board of Directors/a given percentage of Shareholders of the Company? Yes No

This would usually be required for start-up businesses by the bank.

D. SUCCESSION/TRANSFER OF SHARES

1. If a Shareholder wishes to transfer shares, should he/she first have to offer his/her shares to the other Shareholders on a pro rata basis? Yes No

2. Should the Company have the option to buy back the shares? Yes No

Please note that there are tax considerations here: the default tax treatment of the proceeds of sale on a company buyback is income for the recipient unless certain considerations are satisfied.

3. Should a Shareholder be able to (without going through the process of offering his/her shares to the other Shareholders) transfer shares to:

(a) family members including: Yes No

(i) spouses Yes No

(ii) co-habitees Yes No

(iii) children Yes No

(iv) parents and other relatives Yes No

(v) other third parties Yes No

(if so please specify who)

(b) family trusts (may be desirable for tax planning purposes) Yes No

(c) nominees Yes No

(d) companies controlled by the Shareholders Yes No

In all cases at any time:

(aa) whilst the Shareholder continues to work for the Company Yes No

(bb) after the Shareholder no longer works for the Company Yes No

(cc) on or after the death of the Shareholder Yes No

4. Should a Shareholder be bound to offer his/her shares for sale to the other Shareholders/the Company upon one of the following events occurring:

- (a) death Yes No
- (b) critical illness Yes No
- (c) bankruptcy Yes No
- (d) resigning as a director or employee of the Company Yes No
- (e) breach of the shareholders' agreement/articles/service agreement Yes No
- (f) dismissal as an employee of the Company Yes No
- (g) removal as a director of the Company Yes No
- (h) retirement (if so, what is the normal age of retirement for the Company?) Yes No

- (i) ceasing to be an employee or consultant etc. for any reason whatsoever Yes No

In the above cases, the Shareholders' Agreement will contain "Deemed Transfer Provisions". These provisions require that Shareholders who suffer such an event offer their shares for sale.

5. Provision can be made in the documentation so that the departing Shareholder's shares are valued on a different basis if he/she were a 'bad leaver', but this would not apply if he/she were a 'good leaver'.

For example, a bad leaver could be defined as a Shareholder/Director who has materially breached the terms of the Shareholders' Agreement or his/her service contract. A bad leaver's shares could be valued at 50% or less of their value or the nominal value. Please note good/bad leaver clauses tend to be controversial. Any provision of this nature will need to be considered in detail.

- (a) Should provisions for good leaver/bad leaver be included? Yes No
- (b) If so, what value should a bad leaver receive?
 - (i) half of the market value;
 - (ii) the nominal value;
 - (iii) the amount paid up on his/her shares; or
 - (iv) other

- (c) If so, which of the events set out in paragraph 3 above should be "good leaver" events (usually these include: death, critical illness, retirement) and which should be "bad leaver" events (usually these include: breach of the Shareholders' Agreement, bankruptcy, dismissal as an employee/Director of the Company). You need to consider what is important to you and your company.

- (d) Should the "good leaver"/"bad leaver" provisions apply to all Shareholders, or to the holders of certain classes of shares only?

- (e) On a sale of shares, if a Shareholder has a minority interest, should the value of the shares be discounted to reflect the minority interest? Yes No

Sometimes the value of a shareholding will take account of other factors in addition to the simple market value. A shareholding which only has a right to receive a dividend but does not have a right to vote, may hold a lower value than other shares with full dividend and voting rights.

6. If a Shareholder leaves the business (for whatever reason) in a given time period, it is possible to restrict the value that the Shareholder will receive for their shares. For example: if a Shareholder leaves in under 1 year, they will be classed as a bad leaver. If they leave in under 2 years they will receive 50% of the market value. Please indicate if you would like an early leaver provision, and if so on what terms?

7. If a Shareholder sells his/her shareholding and a short time later his/her shares are then sold at a much higher price, should he/she or his/her estate be entitled to some or all of the further proceeds paid for the shares? Yes No

Please note that these provisions, called "anti-embarrassment provisions", are complicated as they need to deal with all types of exits – share sale, asset sale, liquidation and a float. Also consider if it includes a partial sale and a change of control (whether through sale or investment).

8. If a Shareholder is to be bound to offer his/her shares for sale to the other Shareholders/the Company upon, for example, death, should life/critical illness insurance be taken out to be paid to the surviving Shareholders/the Company for the purposes of buying out the deceased Shareholder? Yes No

This insurance ensures that the surviving Shareholders/ the Company can afford to pay (what is usually) the market value for the shares of the deceased. This is done through a cross option between Shareholders. Please note that there are tax considerations here, depending on who pays for the policy, whether it is held on trust and if Company as the other shareholder(s) is/are the recipient.

E. SALE OF THE COMPANY OR ITS BUSINESS OR A FLOTATION OF THE COMPANY

1. Who decides when, and for how much, the Company, or its business, is to be sold or floated? This could be decided by the Shareholders holding a certain percentage of the shares of the Company, or it may require consent from the Founding Shareholders? It could be included in the list of approvals required in section G below.

2. Who negotiates a sale or float? (A specific individual, or even a group of individuals, such as the Founding Shareholders may be nominated.)

.....

3. Should the following clauses be included in the shareholders' agreement and articles of association:

3.1 Drag Along Clause Yes No

This enables the holders of a requisite percentage of the issued shares (the "Sellers") who wish to sell or float the Company to agree to a sale or a flotation and then to force any dissenting Shareholders to sell or offer their shares on a flotation at the same price per share as will be received by the Sellers. In effect, the dissenting Shareholders are "dragged along" upon a sale or a flotation.

Please specify the % you require

3.2 Tag Along Clause Yes No

This enables the holders of any shares to require that, in the event that a sale of a "Controlling Interest" of the Company has been agreed (this is usually 50% or more of the issued voting shares of the Company) then no sale of those shares shall be completed until an offer has been made by the proposed purchaser of such shares, to purchase all of the shares of the Company at the same price per share. In effect, all Shareholders can choose to "tag along".

Please specify the % you require

F. DIVIDEND/RETENTION OF PROFITS POLICY

1. How is the dividend policy to be operated over the next few years? (For example: you may wish to retain all of the profit within the business for the first few years to help fund growth.)

2. Is a defined proportion of profits to be distributed and a defined proportion of profits retained for use as working capital?

3. Is there to be a discretionary dividend clause to allow for the payment of dividends only on certain classes of shares at the discretion of the Directors/Shareholders?

.....

G. RESTRICTED TRANSACTIONS

1. Should certain transactions, the most important transactions, (such as those set out in point 2 below) require the consent of:

If yes, will this take the form of equity funding (subscription for shares) or the making of loans/subscriptions for loan stock?

3. Consider the procedure to be employed to raise further equity finance in the future including Venture Capital Finance (if applicable).

Should existing Shareholders be given the first right of refusal for the introduction of equity finance into the Company?

Some Shareholders may wish to use their own money to fund the business rather than incurring debt with a third party.

4. Should Shareholders be required to use their best/reasonable endeavours to raise an amount equivalent to their % shareholding in the Company? (For example: if one Shareholder has a 30% share in the Company, he/she will be required to obtain 30% of the funding the Company needs.) This may be considered too onerous and you may simply rely on pre-emption rights on a new issue of shares. Yes No

5. Can the Board of Directors decide how, when and how much debt finance should be raised or should the consent of a certain percentage of Shareholders be obtained first above a certain level of debt?

For example, a Company may have 2 existing Shareholders, one of whom has given a personal guarantee, guaranteeing to pay the Company's rent should the Company fail to do so. Is it intended that all the existing Shareholders will share in the responsibility and liability of the personal guarantee which is equivalent to their % shareholding in the Company? Yes No

Will the giving of a guarantee require unanimous consent of the Shareholder or a required percentage?

K. DEADLOCK PROVISIONS

Deadlock provisions are usually only applicable for joint venture arrangements where there are an even number of Directors and/or if the Company is owned on a 50/50 basis (or similar) and are used as a means to resolve fundamental disagreements between the Shareholders.

In the event of there being a deadlock between the Shareholders in relation to any matter (i.e. a majority decision cannot be reached), should this be remedied by:

- (a) having a cooling off period (a few weeks/months in which nothing can happen); Yes No
- (b) arbitration (alternative to Court resolution); Yes No

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION AND TRADE SECRETS

The definition of confidential information is very important. Any confidential information which is not specified exactly, may not necessarily be protected as a Court could consider the definition too wide to be enforceable. Where a full definition is provided, this gives the Company better prospects of action against the employee if they breach this provision.

33. What does the Company consider constitutes confidential information to which the employee would have access and which would substantially damage the business if disclosed to a third party?

POST TERMINATION RESTRICTIONS

In order to prevent unfair competition from an employee after their employment ends, it is advisable to have restrictions in the employment contract. In order for such restrictions to be enforceable, the Company must have a legitimate business interest to protect, the restraints must be reasonable in time and area and they must be no wider than necessary to protect the Company's business interest. If this is not the case, the Courts will decide that the restrictions are too wide to be enforceable. A consistent approach should be taken in relation to employees holding similar roles/ seniority.

It is important that these post termination restrictions mirror the restrictions in the Shareholders' Agreement.

34. Would you consider it appropriate to include restrictive covenants in the employee's contract? Yes No

35. What type of activities are you particularly concerned to protect against:

- Interfering with the supply of goods or services to the Company? Yes No

PAY IN LIEU OF NOTICE

36. Would you consider, if the contract was terminated, making a payment in lieu of notice (PILON)? If so, a clause can be included in the contract in order to protect post-termination restrictions. Please note that there are tax consequences in including such a clause. Yes No
